By late Wednesday afternoon, however, 58 legislative requests had been published on the House website. They are available at gen-court.state.nh.us, under the "2013 bill requests tab."

According to the Concord Monitor, the requests published Wednesday included outlawing abortion if a fetus's heartbeat can be detected, allowing the Legislature to de-

A shadowy but well-organized hacker group in the Middle East has disrupted the electronic banking operations of America's largest financial institutions in recent days, underscoring U.S. vulnerability to online terrorism.

A group identifying itself as Izz ad-Din al-Qassam Cyber Fighters attacked the websites of Wells Fargo, U.S. Bancorp and Bank of America. The strikes left customers temporarily unable to access their checking accounts, mortgages and other services.

The banks said account and personal information for their tens of millions of land and mobile customers were not compromised. Still, experts said the size and viciousness of the attacks highlight the ever threat posed by electronic crime and susceptibility of financial targets.

Of particular concern, experts said
