DAD,

When I got home from work today my roommate was gone. You may recall several months ago I introduced you to ~~Pod~~ at a visit. Someone on our living Pod affectionately gave him the nickname. Anyway, was a good guy and just waiting to move off to his program. I was a little sad I didn't get a chance to say goodbye to him and wish him luck. Then I found this note on my bed and thought it was nice of him to leave it along with a couple of stamps I previously lent him so he could mail cards to his daughters. I was headed to the trash can to throw out the note when I thought of you reminding me to keep my chin up, keep trying to be Chad, and keep trying to make a difference in people's lives. Well, I haven't been able to give you a birthday present in a long time but I thought this note from ~~Pod~~ would show you I listen. Happy Birthday I love you Chad
