Judge Tina Nadeau,

I am writing today on behalf of a really great friend Chad Evans. I would like to tell you that I look at Chad not only as an incredible friend but also as a big brother to me. Chad has given me so much help in my life. He has given me great advice. Always taking the time to listen to my problems and help to show me options. He gave me great advice on setting up a college fund for my daughter Brittany. Also showing me about money markets to help myself. He is the kind of person that has always been there and made time to listen to me as well as others. What I am trying to say is he truly does care about other people. Chad has always paid more attention to other people more than any person I have ever met. He always goes beyond the extra mile to help someone.

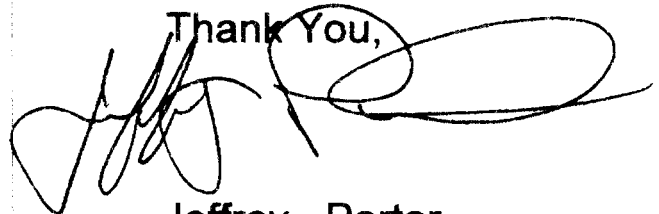

Chad is an incredibly hard working person that worked his way to a very respectful position at a very young age. He overlooked 7 plus stores with a lot of traveling. But always making time for his sons. Making sure they participated in activities. Like taking them to their T-ball games. As well as investing in each of their futures. What takes me to my next question. Why didn't any of us have a chance to tell about the Chad Evans we know or have seen him bond with our children? Chad has been at my house and spent time around my daughter. They always had a lot of fun. Brittany always played with Chad. They would put a puzzle together. Or Brittany would show Chad how she destroyed her bedroom in 5 minutes. She would often ask when he was coming back to play with her. You could obviously see it was genuine. Everyone I have seen Chad come in contact with has always spoken highly of him.

To me that is a true sign of a person that respects other people to the highest level. Takes time to listen as well as treating everyone like he would like to be treated.

I have spent time at Chad's home and he was always very outgoing. He would always make sure I had plenty of food and was comfortable. More than I have experienced with other people. It was always like I was a part of his family. I think that always helped me when I would ask Chad for advice, because I already felt so at ease with him. If there was one person I had to pick to raise my daughter if something tragic happened to myself it without a question would be Chad Evans. Because of the kind, caring, giving, and honest person that he is. I know Chad feels the deepest pain for this whole tragedy. I can tell you that he thinks about that little girl constantly and wishes so badly that he could help her. As well as help and be with her mother. I know the one person that Chad is not thinking about is Chad. Because I have seen so many times in my life where Chad would put others before himself.

In brief Chad is not only a great friend but also a great person. He takes time for other people when everyone I know are only concerned with one person, themselves. That in my mind is what will always stand out about Chad. He cares with all his heart.

Thank You,
