Keene man graduates from 'McDonald's U.'

Chad Evans of Keene has graduated with honors from the McDonald's Corp. Hamburger University in Oak Brook, Ill., with a "bachelor of hamburgerology" degree. He also was named to the dean's list.

Evans completed the school's advanced operations course, required for all McDonald's restaurant managers, franchisees, mid-management and company executives.

McDonald's founded the school in 1961 to ensure consistency in food quality, customer service and restaurant operations. By the end of this year, more than 45,000 students will have graduated from the school.
